MINISTER'S MESSAGE

I am pleased to present the Department of Municipal and Community Affairs' (MACA) Strategic Plan that will provide the framework for our actions as we plan for tomorrow. This is the product of fruitful discussions, thinking and careful review by a broad spectrum of people, both within MACA and beyond.

MACA has a broad mandate involving a variety of stakeholders. As we strive to provide relevant, effective programs and services that add value to our stakeholders, we also want to ensure that innovation, learning and excellence are reflected in the way we do business.

Over the past several years, MACA and its partners reached the following milestones:

- Completion of policy and legislative amendments to implement the "New Deal for NWT Community Governments;"
- Developing a made-in-the-NWT approach to the allocation of federal infrastructure funding to community governments
- Facilitating completion of "Integrated Community Sustainability Plans" for all 33 community governments;
- Development of a "Public Service Capacity" initiative for community governments; and
- Development of the "Healthy Choices Framework."

MACA now needs to gauge the environment and context that we operate within, take stock of where we are at, and reflect on lessons learned. Doing so will help position the Department to move forward proactively into the future so that, together with our partners, we can build upon our successes in an integrated way. Ultimately, this will allow us to support community governments to achieve their vision, goals and objectives. It will also allow us to provide opportunities and support for our youth to embrace healthy living as a stepping stone to becoming successful adults.

It is important at this time to embrace a plan of action that will achieve our goals well into the future. And this Strategic Plan is intended to do just that. It is a plan that will guide MACA's actions over the next five years in a cohesive and transparent manner. Our stakeholders clearly know what it is we are committed to achieving, and all MACA staff clearly know the importance of their work in supporting these strategic directions. We will complement and support the Strategic Plan through the development of our annual Business Plans to provide detail on what our annual targets and actions are. Annual updates of the Business Plan will provide our stakeholders an important accountability tool to mark progress and note important milestones.

I would like to thank all of our partners who, along with MACA staff, have put careful thought into the development and review of this Strategic Plan, and I encourage all partners to provide any thoughts and comments they may have at this time.

Robert C. McLeod
Minister of Municipal and Community Affairs

A STRONG FOUNDATION

AN INCLUSIVE PROCESS

MACA embarked on a strategic planning process in late spring 2008, recognizing that the timing was opportune, given recent achievements and functional changes. All MACA staff were engaged in the development of the draft Strategic Plan, which was shared with key stakeholders to seek valuable input. It was critical that the Northwest Territories Association of Communities, the Local Government Administrators of the Northwest Territories, and the Sport and Recreation Council received an opportunity to consider the draft Plan to identify opportunities exist for collaboration and partnership.

It is important to note that community governments have also undertaken the development of their own strategic plans, as part of the Integrated Community Sustainability Planning initiative, which is a requirement of the Canada-NWT Gas Tax Agreement. MACA supported community governments to complete this work through a series of regional and community workshops and the development of planning tools. The Department sees value in strategic planning and its own plan is intended to complement and support the plans of community governments and other stakeholders.

OUR VISION

Responsible, responsive community governments, citizens and youth in safe and vibrant communities.

OUR PRINCIPLES

MACA adheres to the following principles:

1. Community governments function as separate, distinct governments responsible for the provision of municipal programs and services.
2. Community governments exercise authority and can assume responsibility for programs and services appropriate for community level delivery.
3. Community governments have sufficient authorities and resources to undertake their responsibilities within territorial legislation and policy.
4. Community governments are able to provide essential municipal services on an equitable basis, while ensuring safe, healthy, and attractive environments for all residents.
5. The public interest respecting consumer services is protected through actions and safeguards.
6. Residents have access to physical activity, sport and recreation services which promote health and contribute to the quality of life in communities.
7. Volunteers play an important role in strengthening the fabric of our communities and should be supported.
8. Youth can pursue positive developmental opportunities and programs that assist them in becoming the next generation of leaders.

OUR VALUES

MACA recognizes and respects community government authorities and autonomy and:

- serves community governments and clients in a professional and progressive manner; while being responsible for our own actions and results;
- encourages integrated approaches to community development;
- serves the public with a client focused approach;
- strives to be open, honest and respectful of cultures, traditions and community priorities; and
- promotes a timely and effective team approach within the Department and a partnership approach when assisting community governments toward sustainable solutions.

Within MACA, the Department values its staff and endorses:

- professionalism;
- an educated, experienced and committed workforce; and
- proactive individual and team contributions.

OUR GOAL

Our goal is to establish a Strategic Plan where:

- The Department's direction supports the broader strategic vision, goals and priorities of the GNWT;
- There is a shared vision and approach with our stakeholders;
- MACA staff have clear and consistent direction relative to the Department's mandate;
- There exists a roadmap outlining what we propose to do and within what timeframe ; and
- MACA builds upon the strengths of our partners to help develop and sustain efficient, safe, healthy communities where residents share a strong sense of community pride.

16TH LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY'S PRIORITIES

The GNWT's Strategic Plan sets out Government-wide priorities for action. Currently, MACA is actively engaged in a number of strategic initiatives and programs that contribute to the overall advancement of the priorities of the 16th Assembly. Healthy and sustainable communities are a cornerstone of many of the initiatives that are being advanced and supported.

The 16th Legislative Assembly has identified the following priority actions for its term of office:

- a strong and independent north built on partnerships;
- an environment that will sustain present and future generations;
- healthy, educated people;
- a diversified economy that provides all communities and regions with opportunities and choices;
- sustainable, vibrant, safe communities; and
- effective and efficient government.

ENVIRONMENTAL SCAN

In developing MACA's Strategic Plan, it was important to look at the broader context within which we operate. In doing so, MACA needs to connect our roles to the broader working environment. The results are strategies and actions in the Plan that reflect an awareness of the current pressures and opportunities, and the framework within which we operate.

COMMUNITY CONTEXT

Community governments are MACA's key partners. The work we do seeks to support the quality of life in communities across the territory. At this time, as community governments strive to deliver quality programs and services, they are balancing diverse demands and interests in the following broad areas:

- Political pressures on elected leaders to develop their capacity in order to lead effectively, manage limited resources, hire competent administrators and make significant decisions on issues with long term implications .
- Administrative pressures facing community governments as they struggle to recruit and retain a skilled workforce in a competitive economy as well as ensure access to more technical and professional resources and skills
- Financial pressures as community governments strive to balance the diverse interests of residents with a finite level of funding. As well, there are increasingly complex and demanding requirements for accounting and financial management.
- Complex regulatory demands that administrators need to respond to including compliance with federal water and waste water guidelines, proposed resource development requirements, land use development pressures and environmental assessments. Public safety priorities for fire and emergency protection are also key.
- Expectations that community governments will actively strengthen community fabric by addressing youth issues and the public expectations for recreation, volunteer and community wellness programs.
- Environmental factors, such as climate change, require proactive and innovative thinking, given the current impact on community public infrastructure.
- Increasingly sophisticated technical requirements such as project and asset management that require specialized skill sets to effectively design, plan and deliver community programs and services.
- Economic pressures are impacting communities in many different ways.

THE NEW DEAL FOR NWT COMMUNITY GOVERNMENTS

A significant change has resulted from the major policy initiative of the Department – the New Deal for NWT Community Governments – that is being implemented and has become a part of our core business. There has been tremendous change as a result, not only for community governments, but also in how MACA does business. The role of staff is transitioning from “doing” for community governments to an emphasis on “coaching, advising and supporting,” and we need to take stock of how well we are adapting to this change.

Since implementation began in 2007, the New Deal has empowered community governments to determine and implement their community infrastructure priorities. Many communities have embraced the new responsibilities enthusiastically while others are approaching them more cautiously. While it is recognized that the determination of infrastructure priorities and development and approval of community infrastructure plans were and are critical to community government autonomy under the New Deal, there are other important aspects of the New Deal that community governments and MACA will continue to work to implement.

For example, by-law and policy development to facilitate procurement of goods and services on a much larger scale (i.e. the construction of infrastructure), the borrowing of funds, and managing lands within community boundaries. The larger volume of funds and procurement within the mandate of councils has also meant that financial management policies and bylaws, risk management practices and codes of conduct for Councils have often required updating. It is important to both MACA and community governments that continued progress is made for each community government to take on more autonomy and authority over their affairs at a pace they are comfortable with.

MACA CONTEXT

MACA works to support community governments in the delivery of their core municipal programs and services, and the broad mandate of MACA reflects the diversity of programming at the community government level.

The MACA Establishment Policy sets out the Government’s commitment to establish MACA and confirms that the Department’s mandate is to be:

responsible for the development and maintenance of community governments, responsive and responsible to the residents, with sufficient legal authority and resources to carry out community responsibilities, to provide their public programs and services essential to good community life and to deal effectively with other governments and organizations. The Minister and Department are also responsible for protecting the interests of consumers.

Scarce financial and human resources, water quality, resource development, capacity building and training, youth development, infrastructure investment, project management, sport and recreation – are all issues where MACA needs to continue to creatively partner in order to meet the broader interests and get the best results possible.

As well, current priorities and approaches within the GNWT create opportunities for inter-departmental and cross functional initiatives, and MACA strives to take advantage of these opportunities in order to advance issues relevant to the Department's mandate.

The federal government's increasing involvement in and support for community public infrastructure through initiatives like the Gas Tax Funding and the Building Canada Fund mean that we will continue to work with our partners to advocate that federal funding programs are applied and implemented in a manner appropriate to the Northwest Territories. It also means that the reporting, accountability and administrative requirements for MACA and community governments may continue to stretch existing resources.

STRENGTHS, CHALLENGES AND OPPORTUNITIES

There are a range of strengths, challenges and opportunities currently facing the Department, community governments and stakeholders.

STRENGTHS

- Community governments and stakeholders are interested in and can manage additional responsibilities;
- MACA has excellent relationships with community governments and stakeholders;
- Together, MACA, community governments and stakeholders are responding to issues identified as priorities by local governments, e.g. youth programming;
- MACA provides meaningful tools and information for its divisional staff and for community governments such as the geographic information system, strategic planning e-tool, and others; and
- MACA programming adds value for its partners.

CHALLENGES

- Resources are finite and we are all challenged to maximize how we use these resources;
- Although progress has been made, communities still face human resource capacity challenges;
- MACA, community governments and stakeholders are striving to balance diverse and ever increasing pressures; within this context the development and implementation of long-term planning can be challenging to achieve; and
- Resource development, environmental stewardship, infrastructure needs, human resource development, and other priorities create a demanding work context.

OPPORTUNITIES

- There is excellent work being done by community governments, stakeholders and MACA – these best practices need to be documented and shared;
- Communications within MACA, and between MACA and partners, can be improved to increase the success of program delivery;
- Development of innovative ways to share resources and combine programs, services, training, and alternative/federal funding opportunities should be examined;
- New technology and communication tools should be explored and used where appropriate;
- Build on educational opportunities and partnerships to enhance training with the private sector, Aboriginal governments and between Headquarters and Regions.

Looking into the future, the Department takes these strengths, challenges and opportunities into account to map out its direction. MACA will also be aware of the trends and issues, current or imminent that will affect communities across the Northwest Territories and determine how MACA can provide appropriate levels of support.

STRATEGIC THEMES

In developing the Strategic Plan, four key themes have been identified that capture the nature of MACA's work and the priorities for focus. Within each theme, there are goals, strategies, actions and performance measures that describe what MACA intends to do and by when.
